Illesheim's Continuous School Improvement

As we approach the end of the First Semester, teachers are busy working on assessing students and measuring their growth so far this school year. Our goal is to also work with parents on understanding our goals and ensuring that you are an active member of our Continuous School Improvement Teams. A description of each team is below. I want to invite parents to join one of our teams and assist us with improving our goals for students.

The new Standards Teams.	What its job is?
Vision and Purpose	This group analyzes whether the school successfully meets the standards they have set forth, the expectations for student learning aligned with their vision and mission, these expectations are clear and focused for assessing student performance, and there are allocations of time as well as human resources in order to meet their vision.
Stakeholder Communication and Relationships	This group analyzes and helps facilitate adjustments so that the school does meet its standards of commitment through collaboration, shared leadership, and advance improvements for student learning through various processes/practices.
Documenting and Using Results	To make sure the school enacts and analyzes comprehensive assessment systems while monitoring and documenting student performance effectively.
Governance and Leadership	This group deals with making sure there are leaders who not only advocate the direction the school is going through its mission and goal, but help encourage those who may be struggling with the process. They make sure that the school's policies, procedures, and organizational conditions ensure equity of learning and support innovation within the class room.
Teaching and Learning	This team helps come up with ways to implement training in new materials, provide resources or ask for resources to be procured, make sure that all new interventions are used within the classroom, and to be sure that there is feedback both to teachers and students.
Resources and Support	Analyzes to be sure the school successfully meets the standard of sufficient human resources, materials, fiscal resources, curriculum, and helps make sure the staff is qualified to meet the assignments set by the mission and goals of the school.
